

PARALLEL CITIES: THE MULTILEVEL METROPOLIS

Join VJAA principal architects/authors Jennifer Yoos and Vincent James, as well as Director of Cranbrook Art Museum Andrew Blauvelt, as they discuss “Parallel Cities,” published by the Walker Art Center, a book that examines the history of the multilevel city with a focus on elevated pedestrian networks as a recurrent theme in urban planning and design. The implementation of streets above streets creates parallel cities, not mirrored but alternate realities where questions about access, use, and control emerge. This fascinating and untold history, the first of its kind, explores and architectural idea as it evolves under varying social, geographic, and political contexts.

MONDAY, APRIL 17
5:30PM
RAPSON 100

Books to be sold following the lecture.
Sales located in the HGA Gallery in Rapson.

Event is free and open to the public.

